ANDON

“Andon takes inspiration from traditional Japanese wood-framed washi paper lamp that originally would have contained a small vessel of burning oil as a source of light.

Some Andon were portable and could be carried from room to room, or out into the streets at night. With electrification, however, their utility faded.

For Ichendorf Milano I have rethought this traditional concept in a contemporary way with an aesthetic that link east and west culture. Andon using led system without wire and thanks to the handle is easily to carry from your interior to outdoor.

Andon has a reflected light in transparent blown glass with direct down light. Is suitable for home, restaurant and public space.

The on/off touch button allows the set the light intensity in 3 level of brightness.

The absence of the stem create an effect as like the handle is floating.

Furthermore the handle is connected to the electrical part without visible connections respecting the minimalist dna of the lamp.

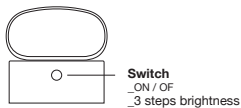

A suspended light giving warmth and cosiness on a dark evenings..”
